Nature of this document — read first

- This report organizes events extracted from the mother's own text-message history. The original messages are the evidence; every item below quotes its source message so it can be verified.
- It was produced with the assistance of automated (AI) analysis, which can miss or misclassify messages. All counts and percentages are estimates and should be independently verified.
- It covers text messages only — not school, medical, or court records.
- It is an organizational aid, not legal advice and not a substitute for counsel's review.

Overview

The transcript covers roughly January 2024 through May 2025 of co-parenting communications between Sarah (mother) and David (father) about their children Emma and Noah. The messages show Sarah handling day-to-day routines, school events, medical and dental appointments, activities, and summer camp registration and payment, while David frequently cancels or reschedules his scheduled weekends and misses several child-centered events. There are extended stretches with no contact from David. In January 2025 David proposed a 50/50 custody arrangement; Sarah responded by citing the prior year's pattern of missed time and asked him to consistently use his existing parenting time first.

Custody Breakdown

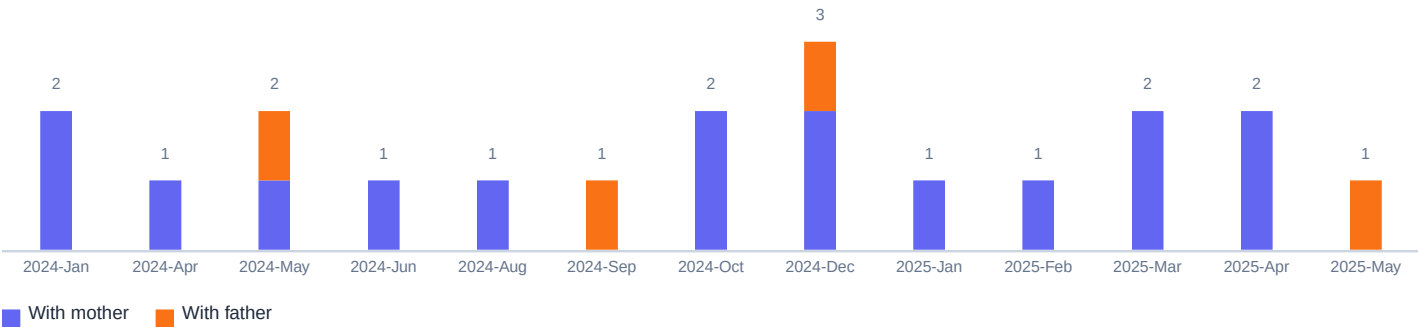

Childcare instances identified — with mother: 16; with father: 4; shared: 0; unclear: 0.

Childcare events were identified only from messages that explicitly stated a child was in a specific parent's care (e.g., 'kept both kids', 'You had the kids', 'I took them', 'You picked the kids up'). Where the transcript only described scheduling intent without confirmation of actual care, the event was omitted. Counts are based solely on messages and emails in this transcript and are not a complete log of actual time with the children.

Tone of Co-Parenting Communications

Communications about the children are mostly logistical and initiated by the mother, who provides reminders and updates about schedules, school, medical care, and activities. The father's messages are brief, often cancelling or rescheduling, and there are long periods of non-responsiveness. Tone escalates at key points — after the April 2024 no-show and the March 2025 missed birthday — but generally remains civil rather than hostile. The mother's January 2025 email and replies to the 50/50 custody proposal are firm and documentary in tone rather than confrontational.

Limitations & Caveats

- ² The transcript records messages only; it does not establish what actually occurred in person beyond what the parties wrote.
- ² Some attributions (e.g., whether the father visited on specific dates) rely on one parent's statement without confirmation from the other.
- ² Counts of visits, cancellations, and gaps are estimates derived from messages and emails in this transcript and are not a complete record of actual time spent with the children.
- ² Communication gaps reflect only what appears in these messages; communications may have occurred on other channels not included here.
- ² Third-party statements from Linda are from a relative and may not be neutral.
- ² Message analysis cannot replace official school, medical, dental, financial, or court records.
